MAIDS WHO WILL WED.

Something About a Peculiar Business in Chicago.

THRIVING MATRIMONIAL AGENCY

Where Wives of Every Kind, Young and Old and With or Without Fortunes Are Furnished for a Moderate Fee-The Methods of Doing Business Told By the Manager. Plenty of Willing Maids and Widows for Equally Willing Barkuses.

Chicago Inter-Oceon.

Wives do not come very high in Chicago. A $5 note judiciously expended will give the lonely sighing swain the right to choose between 200 or more of the fair creatures "not too bright or too good for human nature's daily food," as Wordsworth has it. The goods offered upon the matrimonial market are put up in original packages, delivered C. O. D. subject to inspection and satisfaction guaranteed.

The reporter made it convenient to guaranteed.

The reporter made it convenient to call at the Eureka building on West Madison street and interview the gentleman who professes to have a monopoly on marriageble maidens. At the entrance of the building among other signs is one of black and gold which reads; "McDonnell's Agency."

The elevator man stops at the fifth floor, and to the left, upon a large window covered with a thin coating of white paint, appears in black letters the same sign as at the entrance, with the additional information, "Established in 1880." The entrance, as indicated by several "hands," is at the second door, which opens into a small anteroom cut off from the large room of which it is a part by a wood and glass partition about seven feet in height. A doorway directly in front of the entrance is draped with a Japanese portierre, through the open work of which a half dozen young ladies may be seen at tables and desks, while boxes of envelopes and stocks of circulars lie around in profusion. A conspicuous sign in the anter-room indicates that the "reception room" is to the left. As the reporter stepped through the door into a room furnished with a settee, a few chairs, and a table, he found a lady and gentleman engaged in conversation. The former waved him back into the antercoom with the request to be seated a moment. As he waited an elderly lady appeared dressed in half mourning, with hair nearly white, an intelligent face, and refined bearing. She passed into the reception-room and seated her-self composedly as if knowing exactly into the reception-room and seated her-self composedly as if knowing exactly what was wanted by having been there what was wanted by the before.

After a five minutes' wait a gentleman appeared from the office beyond the reception room, recognized the elderly lady by a bow, and stepping to the door of the ante-room addressed the reporter with:
"You wish to see me? Step this way."

Presumably this was the great match maker himself. Nothing had been said maker himself. Nothing had been said as to who or what was wanted. Walter McDonnell is a man of probably thirty-five years, of average height, rather stout build, brown hair and sandy mustache. He has a snave manner and a smooth, flexible voice. In fact, his voice is so flexible that it ties itself into knots under the slightest provocation of undue excitement. He has blue eyes that look straight into yours and carry conviction of an honest heart that lies behind, until such time as his recreant tongue trips on an uncompromising word, when the right eye swings around towards the bridge of his nose as if in search of the obstruction nose as if in search of the obstruction to the flow of words. Neither of these conditions is chronic and may simply be termed idiosyncrasies under provo-cation.

"What can I do for you?" was Mr.

"What can I do for you?" was Mr. McDonnell's first question.
"I simply wanted to investigate as to the kind of people who endeavor to find husbands and wives in this way."
"As far as that is concerned, or as to the business itself, I am willing you should give it the fullest investigation," said Mr. McDonnell, apparently relieved at the turn affairs were taking. "I have been in the business now for I have been in the business now for fitteen years, and you see I'm not so very old yet. It is the purest kind of a commercial transaction."
"Will you lurnish me cards of introduction to a dozen or more of the ladies

you have on your list in the city, so that I may go and talk with them?" was "That would be impossible. I would be violating my contract with each one if I should send any person to them upon a frivolous excuse. They are not upon a frivolous excuse. They are not ladies who court notoriety and would feel highly indignant at my abuse of their confidence in any such manner."

"What is there to protect a man who is married or wants to go on a lark coming to you with false representations and securing the addresses of a number of your ladies?"
"Nothing except his own sense of honor and my ability to judge human nature. But even if he hoodwinked me his money and time would be ill spent, for the first lady of the ones I should introduce him to that he approached with improper proposals or that found him to be insincere would notify me at once and all the others would be instantly warned. I take every precaution to convince myself that applicants are honest and sincere. If a man applies to me in porson here at my office, before accepting his application I make a record of his age, weight, height, color of hair, color of eyes, disposition, income, property or ineans, or both, and how much, as to the use of tobacce or intoxicating liquor, present occupation, nationality, religion, whether a bachelor or widower, and whether or not he has a legal right to marry. These questions being answered satisfactorily, upon payment of $5, which makes him a yearly member, I furnish him cards of introduction to such ladies as from his position in life, education and disposition I consider most hisbe to please him."

"Does his obligation to you end with the payment of $5?" was asked.

"That depends upon what success he the payment of $5?" was asked. the payment of $5?" was asked.

"That depends upon what success he has in getting married. Each man gives me a note for $25, which is payable only in case he marries a lady to whom he was introduced by me."

"You get a rake-off from the ladies, too, do you not?"

"Well, they have to be handled differently heaven.

"Well, they have to be handled dif-ferently because I can't send them out to call on gentlemen. All that I do for them is to register them in all particu-lars of age, disposition, means, etc., as in the case of a man, but then they have to wait until I can send men to call who I think would be congenial to them. I get the same price, $5 for put-ting their names on my list, but not as much at the time they are married."
"How many ladies have you in the city who are looking for a lord and master?"
"About 200 at the present time, but

'About 200 at the present time, but

"About 200 at the present time, but the list changes continually. Some get married, and others get tired and drop out, while new ones come in. There are more marriages made in this way than you have any idea. There are many matches made by the agency between out-of-town parties of which I never learn, because I have no fee for the consummation of the match from any but these residing in the city. I believe that during my fifteen years' experience as many as 5,000 couples have been married that have been introduced or brought together by this agency."

perience as many as 5,000 conples have been married that have been introduced or brought together by this agency."

That Mr. McDonnell has found the business of introducing marriageable men and maidens a profitable one is evidenced by the fact that he has been entaged in it for a number of years and requires a dozen clerks to assist in carrying on the business.

The joity feature of the game is the small end of it. Where the bulk of the money comes is from country correspondents. The price of service to such is the same as to those living in the city. The way the country is worked is by securing through advertising and circulars the names, descriptions and photographs of buxon widows and blooming maidens who are willing to venture upon the matrimonial sea. The names are given numbers in the agency's private register, and from time to time are published in what are called "private lists." From the photographs received miniature duplicates are printed in large numbers. The man who pays $5 for an annual membership receives every private list of ladies as published, and will be mailed photographs of any with which he may desire to correspond. To men who have not the price of an annual membership or do not care to go in so steep a limited not the price of an annual membership or do not care to go in so steep a limited number of photographs and introduc-tions will be furnished at a reduced fig-

Five photographs and introductions of ladies Class A will be furnished for of ladies Class A will be furnished for 50 cents. These are the ones who do not claim possession of property or money, will marry for love and make some man's home a paradise. Class B ladies come higher, in fact, just double the price, for they are the ones fortunate enough to possess property in their own right and who are heiresses to large amounts. to large amounts.

From the hundreds of photographs that Mr. McDonnell has may be selected almost any type of femininity that exists. It is a peculiar fact that no photographs ever came to the agency of a woman so big, or homely, or old, but to some man who came along wife-hunting it appeared to be his. But while the photographs are handsome or homely, as the case might be one of the peculiarities of the matrimonial agency is that every description that goes out paints each blushing candidate as the sweetest and best. From the hundreds of photographs as the sweetest and best.

as the sweetest and best.

When one reads the glowing descriptions and marks the deep view of numor that lies under Mr. McDonnell's "cheerful, elderly widow with $50,000" and of the other who has a thousand acres of land and no children, it is possible to realize the vast opportunities for a man of brains—and nerve—in the matrimonial agency business. As long as there continue to be more fools than wise men in the world matrimonial agencies and kindred schemes will undoubtedly flourish, for the "fool and his money are soon parted."

INCOME TAX CASES.

The Supreme Court Will Consider the Petitions for a Rehearing on May 6.
Washington, D. C., April 23.—The United States supreme count to-day through Chief Justice Fuller made the following order in regard to the petitions for a rehearing of the income tax question:

tions for a rehearing of the income tax question:

"The consideration of the two petitions for rehearing is reserved until Monday, May 6, when a full bench is expected, and in that event two counsel on a side will be heard at that time."

Although the order does not explicitly so state, it means that argument will be heard, not on the merits of the income tax question itself, but on the question of whether or not there shall be a rehearing of the suits heretolore decided. This argument, it is expected, will include the extent to which the rehearing shall go—that is, whether it shall be confined merely to the point on which the ccurt was evenly divided, the constitutionality of the income tax law as a whole, or whether the whole question shall be reopened and new argument made on the question of whether or not rents are exempt from taxation, as there was a clear majority of the court against this feature of the tax.

The announcement by the court is further corroboration of reports of improvement in the health of Justice Jackson, as it was made only after assurances that unless his case took a turn for the worse he would be able to return to his seat on the bench by the date named in the order.

Formulated for Japan. Hussinita, April 23,-Count Ito, provident of the Japanese ministry, and Viscount Nutsu, foreign minister, peace commissioners on the part of Japan, were received in audience by the emperor here. In addressing the commissioners the emperor said: "The principal points of the treaty are entirely satisfactory, and add much to the glory of the empire. I am highly pleased at the signal service rendered pleased at the signal service rendered by you."

The following imperial proclamation was issued: "Through peace national prosperity is best promoted. Unfor-tunately the runture of relations with China has forced upon us a war, which, after the lapse of ten months, is not yet ended. During this period our minisended. During this period our ministers, in concert with the army, navy and diet, have done all in their power to further our aims in obedience to our instructions. Our ardent desire, with the assistance of our subjects, is to restore peace and thereby obtain our object, the promotion of national prosperity. Now that peace is negotiated and armistice proclaimed, a permanent cessation of hostilities is near at hand. The terms of peace fixed by our ministers of state give us complete satisfaction. The peace and glory thus secured render the present a fitting time to enlighten you as to the course of our ended. During this period our minislighten you as to the course of our future policy.
"We have rejoiced at the recent vic-

"We have rejoiced at the recent victories which have enchanced the glory of our empire. At the same time we are aware that the end of the road which must be traveled by the empire in the march of civilization is still far distant. We therefore hope, in common with our loyal subjects, that we shall always guard against self-contentedness; but in the spirit of modesty and humility strive to perfect our military defense without falling into extremes. In short, it is not our wish that the government and the people alike shall work to a common end, and that our subjects of all classes strive each in his sphere for the purpose of laying the foundation of permanent prosperity.

"It is hereby definitely made known that no comtenance will be given by us to such as, through conceit at the recent
